SUBJECT: H1N1 Influenza Website

In response to the H1N1 influenza, the New Jersey Department of Education has been working closely with the New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services, Office of Homeland Security & Preparedness, and other state agencies to ensure coordination of planning, preparedness and communication on the state level.

In order to assist school districts in planning and preparedness for H1N1 in our schools, the Department has created a new H1N1 Influenza section of the DOE Website. This section, which is available at: <http://www.state.nj.us/education/schools/security/h1n1/> and can also be accessed from the Department's homepage, includes the most updated school-related information, guidance, and resources on H1N1. The Department will continue to update the website so that the entire education community can be prepared if there is a more severe H1N1 influenza outbreak.

The Department remains committed to providing districts with the most current information to enhance H1N1 Influenza planning, preparedness and communication. If you have any questions or comments, please email schoolfluinfo@doe.state.nj.us.
